HE ASKED THE TIME.

A Question and Answer That Were the Starting Point of a Successful Career.

How many clerks measure up to the standard of the young bookkeeper in this story from Human Life? He was employed in the passenger department of a great railroad. It was just a little before lunch. Some of the clerks were putting on their coats, some leaving for the washroom, some consulting the clock; some were still busy. Suddenly the "boss" entered. He glanced about him and then approached the young bookkeeper.

"What time is it?" he asked. The young man kept on figuring, and the boss put a hand on his desk and repeated the question.

Instantly the other looked up, surprised to see the chief at his elbow. "I beg your pardon, were you speaking to me?" he asked.

"Merely inquired the time—that was all," said the other.

"The bookkeeper glanced about the room, located the office clock and said, 'It's ten minutes to 12'."

"Thank you," said the general manager and vice president, and stroked out.

That conversation cost the young bookkeeper his place—in the passenger department and put him under a higher officer "on the firing line." Nine years later he was assistant general manager, and while still in the thirties became a general manager, full fledged.

What W. E. Brewster Wants Every Person in Town to do.

When W. E. Brewster, the enterprising druggist, first offered a 25 cent package of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price, and guaranteed to return the money if it did not cure, he thought it probable from his experience with other medicines for these diseases, that he would have a good many packages returned. But although he has sold hundreds of bottles, not one has been brought back.

To those suffering with dyspepsia, headache, gas, flatulence, constipation and indigestion, Dr. Howard's specific offers quick relief. It is an invaluable tonic to all who feel uncomfortable at the eating, and is tender the popular remedy in all the large cities.

CROCODILE TEARS.
Adventure Travelers in Middle Ages Firmly Believed That the Brutes Shed Tears Over Their Prey.
There was an old story, in which we read constant reference to Elizabethan writers, that crocodiles wept over their prey. No doubt the legend arose because the crocodile possesses large developed lacrimal glands, but it appears in various amusing forms.
As early as the fourteenth century, in "Mandeville's Travels," we find "in that contrie ben great plenty of Crocodiles. These serpentes slyn men, and then eten hem wepyng."
An old turn is given to the tale by the narrator of one of Sir John Haw-kwood's voyages. Whether he was a married man or not we do not know, but he writes "this nature is ever, when he would have his prey, to cry and sob like a Christian boy, to provoke them to come to him, and then he watched at them! And thereupon came this proverb, that is applied unto women when they weep, Lachrymose crocodil, the meaning whereof is that is the crocodile when he crieth forth them about most to deceive, so doth a woman most commonly when she weepeth."
In Fuller's "Worthies" there is the added information that "the crocodile's tears are never true save when he is towed where saffron groweth." Blakemore, Kneiser and Dryden allude to this old world fable.

Just the Other Way.
Nedward Kipling was once visiting at a country house at which Miss Dorothy Drew, the famous granddaughter of Mr. Gladstone, then a little girl, was also staying. She was sent out into the garden by the distinguished author.
Later on, when the other grownups joined them, little Miss Dorothy was asked, "I hope you didn't bore Mr.
Kipling?"
"No, but he bored me frightfully," was the unexpected and resigned reply.

Varied Views of Marriage.
Marriage is a lottery in the beholder's eye, writes a contributor to the Saturday Review, a delightful temptation to the widow, a habit with a good many Londoners.

HEART THRILLING GEMS.

THE BETTER DAY.
If man would take pattern after the flowers,
And be content with his lot,
To cheer some poor brother, and help all along,
And quit striving for what he has no.

What a different place this old world would be,
All lending a strong helping hand; Thus lifting life's burdens for you and for me,
Doing favors that none can demand.

Oh, may we all, in that last Great Day, When we reach that bright Home, no fair,
Hear our Saviour saying the words,
"Well done."

THE FOUR-LEAF CLOVER.
I know a place where the sun is like gold,
And the cherry blossoms burst with snow,
And down underneath is the loveliest nook,
Where the four-leaf clovers grow.

One leaf is for hope, and one is for faith,
And one is for love you know,
And God put another in for luck—If you search you will find where they grow.

But you must have hope and you must have faith,
You must love and be strong—and so, If you work, if you wait, you will find
Where the four-leaf clovers grow.
—Ella Higginson.

THE LAST SALUTE.
Yes, the ranks are growing smaller,
With the coming of each May,
And the beads and locks once raven, Now are mingled thick with gray;
Soon the hands that strew the flowers Will be folded still and cold, And our story of devotion Will forever have been told.

Years and years have passed by, comrades,
Though it seems but yesterday,
Since the blue-garbed Northern legions, Marched to meet the Southern Gray.
But a day since Massachusetts Bade her soldier boys good-bye But a day since Alabama Heard her brave sons' farewell cry.

Those are days we all remember,
In our hearts we hold them yet;
And the kiss we got at parting, Who can ever that forget?
And it may have been a mother, A fond father, or a wife,
Or a maid whose love was dearer
To the soldier's heart than life.

Then the silent midnight marches,
And the fierce fought battle's roar,
And the soldier's lonely watches, Gone, please, God, forevermore; Though these never can be forgotten, While the dew our graves shall wet, Yet the color of our jackets, Let each gallant heart forget.

For the ranks are growing smaller,
And though decked in blue and gray, Soon both armies will be sleeping In these shelter tents of clay.
But the loud reiteration Of the last salute shall be Off to echoed through the ages, As the leaves of the tree

For we both lost did our duty, In the Great Jehovah's plan, And the world has learned a lesson That all men may read who can.
And when gathered for the master
On the last and dreadful day, Say that God extend His mercy Sweet, alike to blue and gray.

DRIEST STATE IN THE COUNTRY

What Prohibition Has Done For the People of Kansas

STATEMENT BY GOVERNOR

Prohibition the Best Business Asset of State—Replies to Whisky Crowd's Infamous Lies—Denies That Pauperism and Crime Have Increased and Poverty Stalks Upon the People

Kansas is the driest state in the union from the point of view of the liquor traffic. Kansas has fought the traffic to the last ditch and not even the drug stores are allowed to dispense liquor. The law is better enforced in Kansas than anywhere else.
The testimony of the Governor of that state ought to be as well received as the tales of irresponsible people or the paid partisans of the brewers and distillers.

Governor Stubbs of Kansas has gone on record as follows: I have never made a prohibition speech in my life. I am a practical, plain-speaking business man and while I regard the moral and sentimental sides of the question as constituting its strongest claim on society for support, I propose, to a very large extent, to discuss the subject from a cold-blooded, economic standpoint. In other words, I am going to present it to you as a sound business proposition.

When I was a candidate for governor in 1905, I made the campaign for my nomination and election on the proposition that if elected to this office—every saloon, joint and place of every kind whatever, regardless of the sentiment of the community, had to be closed. This proposition was made in my campaign speeches to the saloon men in wet communities as well as to temperance people; I stated publicly all over Kansas—in Pittsburg in the mining districts as well as in the localities where the law was enforced—that any man who established himself in the saloon business in violation of the laws and constitution of Kansas would be regarded the same as any other outlaw, and all the power and force of the state government would be used to punish and destroy his business.

Violators of the Prohibitory Law Are Sent to Prison.
This does not mean that we have no violations of the prohibitory law, for if there were no violations such a law would not be necessary. It does mean that the prohibitory law in Kansas is as well enforced as other criminal statutes, and that when men violate it they are arrested, convicted and promptly sent to prison.

The United States government has taken a step which will aid materially in stamping out the irresponsible bootlegger and whisky vender, who now is the principal violator of the prohibitory law in Kansas. Under direction of President Taft the Attorney General of the United States has ordered U. S. district attorneys in "dry territory" not to compromise with men who violate the internal revenue laws by permitting them to pay fines, but to prosecute them and send them to jail for a reasonable time.

I want especially to impress the fact upon your mind, that while Kansas has substantial prohibition for twenty-eight years, it has had absolute prohibition only since May, 1905, as provided to this time, liquor was allowed to be sold through licensed pharmacies for medicinal, mechanical and scientific purposes. Abuse of this privilege led to dissatisfaction and the last legislature wiped out all exceptions and made the state absolutely dry. Before they could sell intoxicating liquor, these pharmacies had to obtain an internal revenue stamp, and it is upon this circumstance in part that the agents and spokesmen of the brewers and distillers are trying to deceive you by showing the number of so-called licenses issued in Kansas last year.

A further explanation of the number of licenses issued in Kansas is found in the method of handling violators of the Federal stamp law.
When our state officers arrest a man for selling liquor they notify the internal revenue officers, who come to the at once and collect a Federal license tax, often times finding the man in jail. This man is then quoted to the brewers, distillers and saloon keepers of other states as a saloon-keeper in Kansas, when in fact he is either in jail, paroled during good behavior, or under indictment never to exercise his liquor selling in our state.

Under our state law the finding of a Federal license stamp in a place fitted up for the sale of intoxicating liquors is prima facie evidence of violation of the prohibitory law, and I challenge the brewers and distillers to show one internal revenue liquor stamp posted in a saloon or joint in Kansas.

Prohibition is the Best Business Asset of Kansas.

While I am not an expert in the affairs of the local government of St.
Louis, I venture the assertion that conditions which are less largely to the saloon and kindred evils of society constitute your most disturbing and distracting problems. Usually cities having an ambition to solve such problems commission delegations of its wisest and best citizens to investigate the treatment of these problems by other communities. As chief executive of my state it would give me great pleasure to welcome delegations from St. Louis to Kansas for the purpose of showing them the result of prohibition. We have had commissioners from Canada, New Zealand, England and Australia and even now the governments of Italy and Russia are investigating our methods of dealing with this evil, the greatest social and governmental problem on the face of the earth today.

If wisdom should cause you to send such a delegation to Kansas I will guarantee they will not find a business man of standing in the state who will not testify that prohibition is the best business asset of Kansas.
If you think it is not a business question, figure carefully on the annual revenue derived from your saloons, and see how far it will go to meet your losses of boys alone through the criminal institutions which are fostered under the wing of the grog shop; for I assert that the brewery is originally, and the saloon is ultimately, the spawning place for the gambler, the prostitute, the robber, the wife-beater, and, finally, the murderer.
The gambling house and the house of prostitution are so closely allied with the saloon that when the latter is compelled to move out of a community the others must go with it, as they have done in our state.

Prohibition in Kansas is not the result of atmospheric conditions. The climate had nothing to do with it.
Reason was at the bottom of it all.
It was not brought about by fanatics, but by sane, sober, patriotic folks who had longer heads and more common sense than the average of the American people had at that time.
It was not a new theory. It was as old as the abuse of liquor. Eleven hundred years before Christ, an emperor of China decreed that all the grape vines be pulled up by the roots and burned to ashes. China has been a sober nation ever since. Centuries before Christ, Lycurgus, the great lawgiver of his people, did precisely the same thing in Greece. The Carthaginians prohibited drinking in their army 300 years before the Christian era. Draco, in his laws, made drunkenness a capital offense. All through history you will find it and wherever it was observed the nations became greater and the people more virtuous.

Prohibition Helps the Farmer, the Grocer, the Merchant.
Prohibition is the doctrine of self defense.

Kansas is simply protecting its people from the arch enemy of human happiness. Kansas homes are protected from an infinitely worse enemy to society than the burglar. Prohibition has simply muzzled a brute that is ten thousand times more vicious than a mad dog. It has only established a quarantine against a plague more destructive than cholera. It has merely cut out a useless expense that was more burdensome on the people than all of the state and county taxes combined.

There is nothing radical or unreasonable in helping a weak man to carry his weaker wife home to his wife on Saturday night. There is nothing fanatical in enabling her to send her children to school with good clothes, good shoes and a good dinner in the little basket.
Prohibition serves the child as well as the man. It is for the wife as well as the husband. It is for society as well as for the individual.
It is for the government as well as for the governed. In Kansas it pays the doctor his bills, the lawyer his fees, the pastor his salary. It helps the milkman, the farmer, the baker, the butcher, the grocer, the cow-boy, the dentist, the book-store, the photographer, the tailor, the dressmaker, the mechanic and the manufacturer.
This is why the people of our state are so thoroughly committed to its support. Opposition to it has practically ceased in every quarter.
Every political party in the state has publicly declared for the strict enforcement of the law.

But here in St. Louis and throughout the United States the brewers, distillers and saloonkeepers, their attorneys and retainers, are telling in posters, pamphlets and speeches that prohibition increases crime in Kansas, that it is making a large crop of pariahs and hyperaesthetes; that it has ruined public credit; caused intelligent taxpayers to desert; devastated industries; discouraged development; enfeebled the people and reduced them to pauperism, upset social relations, and so on throughout a long list of statements equally false and absurd.

These charges are true as they are not true. They are based on facts or they are utterly without foundation.
On my honor as a man, and upon my word as the chief executive of nearly two million sovereign people, I say to you they are infinitely conceived and maliciously false. The saloon men are in desperate straits and are simply trying to deceive people who are deceived by their crimes, that the system may be kept up.

If the prohibitory law has increased drunkenness, crime and poverty, no saloon men claim it has done the saloonkeepers would all be supporting the law instead of fighting it, for it would increase their revenue.

A license at $1,000 a year will mean that the man who wants the profits of whiskey and cannot buy the license will still "bootleg" and "kitchen barroom" in spite of laws and improvement.

Tickling the Doctors.

John Barrett was only twenty-seven years old when President Cleveland appointed him minister to Spain. The first important task which confronted the youthful envoy was to press a claim against the Spanish government for $1,000,000. Experienced ambassadors warned him against using threats in obtaining the money. "Be cunning; avoid overbearing," they said.

"That is," responded Mr. Barrett, "you never tickling with a straw to prickling with a bayonet."

The statement added weight.

When the matter came before the senate, the ambassador asked in astonishment, "How did you accomplish it?"

"By tickling," explained Barrett, "I had to tickle them almost to death, though, before they agreed to pay it."

Quaint Remedies.

Among the members of the Greek church in Hartford the following recipes are resorted to as infallible remedies:

For a cold, take a glass of water and add a pinch of cayenne pepper.

For a headache, take a glass of water and add a pinch of cayenne pepper.

For a toothache, take a glass of water and add a pinch of cayenne pepper.

For a cold, take a glass of water and add a pinch of cayenne pepper.

For a headache, take a glass of water and add a pinch of cayenne pepper.

For a toothache, take a glass of water and add a pinch of cayenne pepper.

To pacify one's enemies write the psalm "Known in Judah," digest it in water and give your enemy to drink thereof, and he will be pacified. For a startled and frightened man take three dry chestnuts and sow thistle and three glasses of old wine and let him drink thereof early and late. Write also "In the beginning was the word" and let him carry it.

No Wedding Presents in Hungary.

In Hungary wedding presents are only given to poor couples to help them get their homes together. The girl friends of the brides show attention by making cakes of various kinds to be partaken of at the marriage feast. Other gifts there are none. And this is a custom that one could wish were more general. There is no wedding cake, either, as we understand it, but each guest receives a kind of sweet cake of the substance of cracknel biscuits, made in the form of a ring about ten inches in diameter. A Free and Easy Prison.

Cettigne, the capital of the kingdom of Montenegro, has probably the most remarkable prison in the world. No walls surround it and the inmates, who furnish their own cells just as they please, seem to stay there only because they find their quarters comfortable. The diet is liberal, with wine on occasions and cigarettes to taste. There is no work to do; no distinctive garb is worn, and comparatively free intercourse is allowed with the outside world. On certain feast days the prisoners are allowed to entertain their friends.

Crushing a Bear.

John G. Whittier, the Quaker poet, once in describing the usage of the Quakers in regard to "speaking in meetings" said that sometimes the religious remarks were not quite to the edification of the meeting. It once happened that a certain George C. grew rather wearisome in his exhortations, and his prudent brethren, after solemn consultation, passed the following resolution: "It is the sense of this meeting that George C. be advised to remain silent until such time as the Lord shall speak through him more to our satisfaction and profit."

An Abstract Idea.

At a card party at Charles Lamb's Harbitt and Lamb's brother got into a discussion as to whether Holbein's coloring was as good as that of Van Dyck. At length they became so excited that they upset the table and asked each other by the throat. In the struggle Harbitt got a black eye, but when the combatants were parted Harbitt turned to Talford, who was offering his aid, and said: "You need not trouble yourself, sir. I do not mind a blow, sir. Nothing affects me but an abstract idea."

Every drop is good.

EVEN children love "Clicquot Club." It does not burn or smart as ordinary ginger ale does (it's made of ginger, instead of pepper); and the pure sugar and dash of lemon make it refreshing and wholesome.
